

NCA 97th Annual Convention

One faculty member and three graduate students represented the School of Journalism and Communication, Chinese University of Hong Kong in the National Communication Association 97th Annual Convention in New Orleans, November 17-20, 2011.

Together our faculty member and graduate students presented two authored or co-authored papers as listed below:

Graduate students:

Zhuowen Dong & Lisa Lai-Shan Tam

Financial Risk Information Processing in Hong Kong: An Application of the Risk Information Seeking and Processing (RISP) Model

Graduate Students & Faculty:

Luzhou Li (M.Phil. graduate) & Saskia Witteborn

Confucianism in the Chinese Media: A Reception Analysis of the Revolutionary History TV Drama In Those Passionate Days

NCA 96th Annual Convention

One faculty member represented the School of Journalism and Communication, Chinese University of Hong Kong in the National Communication Association 96th Annual Convention in San Francisco, November 14-17, 2010.

Saskia Witteborn

Panel Discussion Session – University of Washington Center for Local Strategies Research: Building Bridges between Scholarship and Communities